Major National Conference
with leading International experts on

Signs of Autism in Infants

Recognition & Early Intervention

11-12 JULY 2005

Signs of Autism in Infants Re

11-12 JULY 2005

About the conference

International Researchers and Clinicians renowned for their work in the field of Early Autism come together to resolve queries around the long debate on the development and resolution of autistic behaviour – is it genetic or not? The new information will be explored to verify early signs of alarm and early clinical interventions to halt this disorder whilst the brain is still growing fast

The Conference aims to bring awareness of the possibility of preventing the full development of autistic behaviour and initial help for professionals to recognize early signs of alarm. This will be done from the evidence brought to us by analysis of home made videos containing babies who were diagnosed as autistic by the age of 3 or 4 years old, and by the outcome of early interventions with difficult to reach babies. Another aim is the solidification of the International Pre-Autistic Network to further the study, research and interventions of pre-autistic stages in the development of this disorder.

Chair's remarks

The School of Infant Mental Health.

The School of Infant Mental Health, the first in the UK, is the Training Department of the Parent Infant Clinic which was founded in London in 1990 when the importance of early development and research became apparent. It offers a two-year Diploma course in Infant Mental Health, and advance clinical training in Infant Parent Psychotherapy. These Diplomas are delivered in a series of intensive weekends to be available for people living outside London. The training is based on psychoanalytic theories and techniques in early intervention, prevention strategies and clinical practice.

The School also provides short Courses and workshops: "The Early Series" and has organized successful conferences in 1994: Why communication matters; 1998 Baby Brain I; 2000 Baby Brain II for 120 professionals and four other conferences in 2002 in conjunction with the Child Mental Health Centre. In the summer of 1998 the school ran a successful seminar/training week in Venice, Italy for approximately 30 mental health professionals specializing in working with infants exploring why "early intervention" works, with renowned experts in the field of Early communication and Intervention.
