

EFPP BOOK SERIES CALL FOR PAPERS

Dear EFPP Delegates

It is our pleasure to announce a call for papers for a new book. Under the very actual theme of Couple and Family Metamorphosis: Exploring inside and outside differences, we invite EFPP members of all four sections to send us clinical or theoretical reflection on the following subtopics:

- Families in transformation: changes and challenges
- The Modern Couple: rivalry and narcissism
- Working with cultural differences
- Migration and New Homes
- Infertility and Assisted Reproduction
- Filiation, affiliation and identity construction
- Social and societal influence
- Trauma and traumatic situation
- Loss and Mourning
- Motherhood and Fatherhood today
- Working with couples and families in institutions
- Early family or mother/child interventions
- Effects on mental disorders or disabilities on couples and families
- Effects of Addiction on couples and families

We are welcoming papers reflecting original reflections about the contemporary psychoanalytical psychotherapeutic approach of the couple and families in the plurality of various settings (adult, child and adolescent, group, couple and family) and work frames (private practice, institutions, intervention or prevention, research etc.) The deadline for submission is December 30, 2023. All papers will be submitted to a selection done by the EFPP Book Series editorial team. The selected papers will be announced at the end of February 2024. The papers must be written in English, must contain a maximum of 6000 words (including references), Times New Roman, 12, 1.5. The paper should not be published before in any other contexts.

Please send all proposals (indicating the chosen subtopic) to Cristina Calarasanu, editor in chief of EFPP Book Series (cpap.cristina@gmail.com).
